

Research Assistant: Cognition and Emotion Neuroscience Lab (Full time)

Research Assistant: Cognition and Emotion Neuroscience Lab

Dr. Sarah Keedy, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Neuroscience, University of Chicago

A full-time research assistant (RA) position is available at the University of Chicago. The job provides support for scientific research projects focused on neurocognitive aspects of psychiatric disorders and potential targeted treatments. There is focus on schizophrenia, schizoaffective disorder, bipolar disorder; also effects of substances of abuse.

Assists in coordination of study, analysis of data, and drafting presentations on research findings. Responsibilities: Performs a variety of analyses of neuroimaging (functional and structural MRI, high-density EEG) data as part of psychiatric and related fields research program. Assists with study design, implementation, and data acquisition, including cognitive task programming, scoring, coordination of research participant study visits. Assists with administrative tasks related to studies. Assists in analysis of data and with preparation of reports, manuscripts and other documents. To apply:

https://uchicago.wd5.myworkdayjobs.com/en-US/External/job/Research-Assistant\_JR19161